Political Mediation

OVERVIEW

This workshop equips participants with the knowledge, mindset, and tools to mediate high-stakes political conflicts with integrity and strategy. It emphasizes the importance of trust-building, structured negotiation, and inclusive frameworks to move political actors from confrontation toward consensus and institutionally viable outcomes. Participants will study the strategic, legal, and psychological dimensions of mediating political disputes, including pre-negotiation dynamics, stakeholder mapping, managing asymmetry, shuttle diplomacy, and drafting power-sharing or transitional governance frameworks. The workshop emphasizes neutrality, confidentiality, and leverage, while also exploring the roles of international actors, regional bodies, and civil society in complex political processes.

Audience

Designed for political advisors, mediators, diplomats, international organization staff, lawyers, civil society leaders, peacebuilders, and anyone involved in governance negotiations, transitional processes, or national dialogue initiatives.

Instructors

Led by seasoned political mediators, UN negotiation experts, constitutional advisors, and conflict resolution professionals with firsthand experience in mediating political transitions, peace talks, and governance disputes. Instructors blend strategic insight with legal and diplomatic sensitivity.
